FOR FAULTLINE

By the time the faultline was reached, the ground was so soft that the men had to wade through it. The water was very shallow, but the mud was thick and sticky. The men were very tired and hungry, and they were all very wet. They had to stop several times to rest and eat. The faultline was very deep, and the men had to climb down the side. It was very dangerous, and many of the men were injured. The men were very brave, and they did not give up. They finally reached the bottom of the faultline, and they were very happy. They had done it!
